

VACANT LOTS in towns of all sizes have always been troublesome problems--and eye-sores.

And Campbell is no exception.

Vacant lots also seem to develop the most prolific crop of weeds as well as beer cans and other debris.

That, of course, does nothing for the esthetic value of the community in general and the adjacent neighborhood in particular.

When a lot gets really gruesome in appearance, authorities generally attempt to contact the owner who is technically and legally responsible.

But, as a rule, city regulations only cover weed abatement which takes care only of the weed crop but not the beer cans and other junk.

That is frustrating to all concerned, for the property owner generally had nothing to do with the "planting" of the cans on his property and the city is limited as to how far it can go in cleaning up private property.

PREVENTING the abuse and misuse of vacant lots by litterbugs thus is a tough nut to crack. It would take in most cases a 24-hour guard to keep the kooks off the lots.

The lots next to The Campbell Press on Dillon Ave. are very definitely an unshining example of that. They really are a mess.

And a resident on Dunster Dr. in a letter has complained about a similar situation that exists in her neighborhood near the Campbell Shopping Center.

There are countless other disreputable such examples throughout the town.

It is grossly unfair for a property owner next to one of the messy lots to be forced to clean it up. But that has happened in many instances.

And it is unrealistic to force the owner of the vacant lot to place a guard on his property to keep kooky litterbugs away.

It is also unfair to force the city taxpayers to foot the clean-up bill.

So there you are. Or to put it another way.

Where are you?

POSTAL PEOPLE have often been criticized for poor or slow mail delivery and for many other reasons.

Sometimes the criticism is deserved, especially when some minor oversight on the part of the sender causes a letter to be returned to the sender.

But there is another side of the stamp. There are times when the postal workers accomplish amazing feats of deduction to get mail to the proper destination.

Recently a letter was delivered to our home that its contents indicated was meant for us.

But you couldn't tell it from either the name or the address on the envelope.

After all these years we concede that the name "Vierhus" apparently lends itself to a variety of spellings

Planners okay new industry

Campbell Planners on Monday night gave their approval to plans for a new industry that is to be located in Campbell's industrial park on Dell Ave. They also indicated they would look with favor on a commercial building planned by Goodwill Industries in the commercial zone at San Tomas Road and Campbell Ave.

Plans for the 36,596 square foot building that will house the DeLuxe Check Printing Co., (Deleco Corporation) now in Santa Clara were submitted by Higgins and Root, Los Gatos architects.

Almost $1 million of the estimated cost of the building and facilities which is eventually expected to employ 400 people in two shifts.

Although it was pointed out that a city ordinance prohibits the sale of used merchandise in a commercial zone, the commissioners and City Attorney Joe Bonacina felt that Goodwill would be able to operate in the commercial zone and suggested that the

Bascom Ave. plan upsets city goals

Campbell city councilmen, long plagued with the problem of establishing priorities for major street improvement projects are scheduled to face a new complication next Monday night which involves the ultimate improvement of Bascom Ave.

The real estate firm, representing the Brynteson Ranch property owners, has reported to the city's public works department that the owners are willing to participate in a local improvement district for the improvement of the two streets fronting the 34-acre parcel at Bascom and Campbell.

All preliminary plans for Bascom Ave. improvement developed by the city have stopped at the Brynteson property.

Although pleased with this newest development as far as the future of and ultimate improvement of the street is concerned, city officials point out that the city is not in a position to proceed with such a major undertaking at this time without eliminating almost all the other major street projects that have been recommended in the past.

WREN REPORTS

Bill Wren, public works director, is scheduled to report and ask direction on this newest complication to an already complex situation, at Monday's meeting.

This particular "LID" for the Bascom improvement is envisioned to extend all the way from the railroad tracks on Hamilton to

AN HISTORIC OCCASION--On Tues., Oct. 31, the City Council officially canvassed the results of the city bond election on Oct. 24 when four measures totaling $2,620,000 received the necessary two-thirds majority of the votes cast.

The two measures that lost failed by less than three per cent, it was pointed out.

The city officials commended the hard work of the citizens and expressed pleasure in the results.

Thank YOU, citizens

The result of the Bond Election held on Oct. 24, 1967 can only be interpreted as a mandate to build Campbell.

City officials can now proceed with an orderly program of development.

Adequate facilities and equipment will assure a higher level of municipal services which will increase your investment in Campbell whether it be a home, a business, or a job.

Major credit for the success of carrying the needs of the City to the electorate must be given to the many dedicated citizens who worked on the campaign.

A simple and sincere Thank You is given to all Campbell Citizens who cared.

English-trained horticulturist

Campbell resident gets "royal" treatment in visit to native land

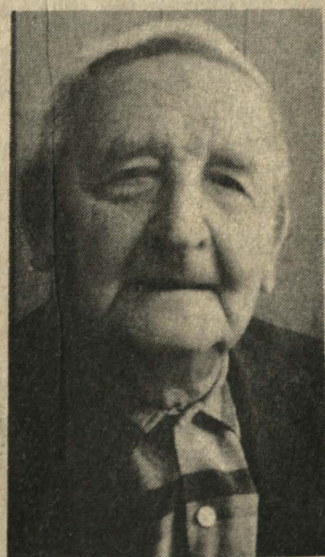

When Albert R. Gould, F.R.H.S., of 167 Rosemary Lane, Campbell last summer was handed a letter by the Lord Mayor of Portsmouth, England, to be delivered to Mayor Ed Rogers of Campbell, it came as a fitting climax to a pleasant visit that Gould had made to his native country, England, which he had not seen for 53 years.

Gould, a physically active 80-year old youngster, moved to Campbell in 1960 after 60 years in horticulture work in which he had established a far-reaching reputation as an aboriculturist. He still acts as a consultant in garden designing and other allied activities.

Gould was born in Birmingham, England in 1887 and the prime purpose of his return to England last summer was to visit his two sisters and a brother who still reside there and whom he had not seen for 53 years. He left British Isles when he was 27 years old.

But, in addition, to visiting his relatives, Gould, quite naturally, spent considerable time "talking shop" with directors of parks in all parts of England and on the continent.

His meeting with the Lord Mayor of Portsmouth came about when Gould was attending a flower show and the Lord Mayor showed up. The Lord Mayor was impressed when he learned Gould's background with the result that they became quite friendly. Hence the letter to Mayor Rogers.

Mayor Rogers, as previously reported in The Press, sent a courteous reply to his counterpart in Portsmouth, England.

But gaining entry to the municipal gardens throughout England and the continent was easy for Gould. He had been trained in the Royal Botanical Gardens, Kew, England, and there are "Kew men" scattered throughout the horticultural world.

F.R.H.S.

Incidentally, the initials "F.R.H.S." after Gould's name stand for "Fellow Royal Horticulture Society", a distinction he gained in 1911. He actually started gardening when he was 12 years old, Gould recalls. It was necessary to have eight years of training before entering "Kew".

Upon leaving "Kew", Gould first went to the Gold Coast of Africa where he spent three years in the department of agriculture in that country.

S.F. In 1915

In 1915, he was chosen by the Ferry-Morse Co. to design the garden which won the grand prize at the San Francisco Exposition.

He has remained in the United States since then and designed a number of gardens in the Santa Barbara area, including the famed Persian Gardens of the Hotel Samarkand.

One of Gould's fondest memories is of the visit of the King and Queen of Belgium (grandparents of the present king) to Santa Barbara in 1919.

Gould acted as special guide for the royal party. He still retains a memento of the visit, a cigarette case, suitably engraved, complete with the royal Belgium crest on the front, a gift to him from the queen.

On his trip to the continent last summer, after first visiting in England, Gould naturally visited the royal palace gardens in Belgium.

Bascom then north on Bascom to the city limits. It would also extend down Campbell Ave. to Union Ave. and the freeway, making a virtual "U-shaped" area.
Off-the-cuff "guesstimates" suggest that the city's share in the cost would be between $400,000 and $500,000 to be financed from gas tax income.
Annual income to the city from the gas tax is now about $175,000. Obviously, should the city undertake such a project in cooperation with the property owners, the entire gas tax income for the next few years would be committed to it.

On a relatively minor basis, some of the other street projects have been curtailed because of the higher costs for the improvement of Winchester Blvd. now almost completed.
Under the local improvement district, the property owners would dedicate the needed right-of-way, pay for the curbs, gutters and sidewalks and the parking lane. The city would have to pay for the middle portion of the street and other improvements such as the possible straightening out of the Campbell-Bascom intersection.

CAMPBELL AVENUE
One of the long-awaited projects is the improvement of Campbell Ave. from Winchester to the railroad tracks.

This project would be one of the "victims" if the major Bascom job is undertaken.
As a coincidence to the street problem, at next Monday's John Faber, head of the Downtown Campbell Redevelopment Committee since its formation in 1961, and City Manager Bob Stephens, are planning to suggest to the council that the group be disbanded and reformed under the name of "Revitalization Committee."

Quite naturally the letter first went to "CARMEL" (After all only an "R" was missing).
In Carmel, a postal clerk tried harder. "Try Campbell," he wrote and changed the spelling accordingly.

Higher education concerns us all

Recently at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting and later at the Kiwanis Club, Dr. John Gilbaugh, professor of education at San Jose State College, has let fire with some damning charges against the state college and university system in the state.
In his speech entitled "The Mounting Crisis in California's Higher Education", Dr. Gilbaugh cites examples of the waste that exists in the higher education institutions and suggests that the average citizen take a hard, long look at the situation.
Whether one agrees or disagrees with Dr. Gilbaugh's position completely is relatively unimportant. In our mind the main issue is that most of us have been inclined to stay clear of the higher education picture. We have not shown enough interest in what is going on.
But we should.
Not only do we pick up the tab for education but it is of grave concern to this nation's future, if the educators are failing in their job.
In this issue The Campbell Press publishes the entire speech of Dr. Gilbaugh, a reprint from "The California Farmer" in which it originally appeared in August of this year.

The Press hopes that this public service may result in the people of this community doing some serious thinking about the most important phase of our life.
Obviously the situation is not all black or all white. And we are not referring to the racial part of the picture.
In next week's issue (Nov. 15), Emerson (Doc) Arends, a member of the San Jose State College Advisory Board and a long-time Campbell business man and civic leader, will offer a rebuttal to Dr. Gilbaugh in The Press.
Arends, who has served for 14 years on the Campbell Union High School Board of Trustees is well aware of the educational needs as well as its problems.
The Campbell Press is pleased to present these viewpoints on a subject of vital concern to all of us.

The Mounting Crisis In California's Higher Education

By JOHN W. GILBAUGH, Professor of Education (Formerly Dean of the College) San Jose State College

WITH increasing numbers of students seeking admission to the state college and university systems of California, it becomes necessary to find new means to provide the resources for higher education. And this must be done without imposing a crippling tax burden on the State's productive citizens.

Although the usual method to accommodate the spiraling costs of education has been to raise taxes, another approach—through increased efficiency—has been almost totally ignored during California's recent affluent years. By careful planning and proper utilization of the human resources now committed to higher education in California, it is possible to improve the quality of education in our state colleges and universities. This can be done without raising taxes. Although state college and university administrators are reporting shortages of qualified teachers to fill vacancies (1500 in the state college system alone as this article was prepared), the so-called shortage is an artificial one. The supply of teaching talent is adequate. In fact, the teaching staff already employed in the state colleges and universities is more than adequate to continue and improve upon the level of instruction provided during the academic year which ended in June, 1967. This can be achieved and absorb, in addition, all the qualified students who wish to be admitted.

Though all so-called full-time, regular faculty members on the state college and university staffs were hired to teach initially by the State of California, a significant portion of their time, talents, and energies have been and are continuing to be diverted from their primary role as college teachers. In a study of outside remunerative employment reported by faculty members at San Jose State College recently, this writer found that about 24 per cent of the approximately 1000 full-time faculty members worked elsewhere for pay. The real percentage, however, is much higher inasmuch as many faculty members refuse to reveal this kind of information.

WHILE the extent to which faculty members are engaged in outside work is difficult to determine accurately, there is considerable evidence that they do seek and acquire outlets for services for which they are paid. For example 65 to 75 of San Jose State's 1000-member faculty teach extension courses each semester for which they are paid extra by the college. A check through the University of California, Berkeley, Extension Bulletins for Spring, 1966, and Fall-Winter, 1966-67, reveals an average of 26 faculty members who are regular, full-time employees of various Bay area state colleges.

The State's junior colleges, where faculty members are almost universally assigned 15-unit teaching loads, provide an outlet for the time and specializations of many state college faculty members. State college faculty members have 12-unit teaching loads, which means that they meet students in a formal classroom setting 12 clock hours per week. Some faculty members spend many additional hours counselling with students and performing other constructive tasks. But, like other segments of our society, college and university faculty personnel are not immune to parasitic infestation. A second study made recently by this writer to determine the extent to which faculty members' schedules are geared to outside employment revealed that, of the 641 regular, full-time faculty surveyed:

1. Eight faculty members reported to campus two days per week only.
2. 56 reported to campus on three days per week only.
3. Seven had classes scheduled on two days per week, but reported office hours.
4. 11 had classes on three days per week, and office hours on at least one of the remaining days.
5. 137 full-time faculty members scheduled classes and office hours four days per week.

6. 422 reported daily appearances on the campus.
While state college and university faculty members resist efforts to increase teaching loads by one class of three units for a total of 15 units in the state colleges and 12 units in the university (the current teaching load for a university faculty member is 9 units), it is obvious that they are quite willing to work for extra pay elsewhere.

IF THREE units of course work were added to the teaching load of the approximately 800 regular, full-time and tenured faculty at San Jose State College, 200 full-time equivalent positions now filled by part-time and temporary instructors could be eliminated promptly. These 200 positions now provide 2400 units of instruction.

If salaries were continued at the current annual level, this plan would net a savings of approximately $2,000,000 per year. Even if all the savings were used to augment the salaries of the 800 regular staff members, which would make them among the highest paid faculty in the United States, the California taxpayers would profit by being relieved of the necessity of providing the extensive facilities now required by the "light-load" faculty plan. Classrooms would be used during afternoon hours during which many of them are idle. While the plan should be voluntary for faculty members, only those who participate would be considered for higher salaries.

California taxpayers should question the lack of use of expensive buildings and campus facilities which sit idle on Saturdays. There is no justifiable reason why regular college classes could not be scheduled on Saturday. Faculty members who teach on that day would be given another day of the week off. This would increase utilization by 20 per cent. And need for new buildings on existing campuses, and indeed, for whole new campuses could be curtailed proportionately.

There is considerable agitation and pressure now being exerted by state college faculties and administrators to get a law through the Legislature which would authorize the state college trustees to change the names of some of our state colleges to "universities." On the surface such a change would seem harmless enough, and the results would seem to be limited to boosting the prestige of some of the state colleges. This issue has much more to it than may be detected by the casual observer. Like the proverbial iceberg, only the above prestige factor shows above the water, but beneath the water, obscured from view, lie the massive hidden costs which would necessitate tax increases.

THE INSTANT a state college achieves the designation as a "university," the emphasis on expensive research and additional graduate programs leading to Master's and Doctor's degrees would be increased. Many of the programs and buildings and facilities which they would require may already be fully and adequately provided to meet California's needs. Expensive duplication of such programs now offered on existing university campuses would saddle California's taxpayers with unnecessary tax increases. The moment a state college is designated as a "university" the demand for lighter teaching loads no doubt would be looked upon with favor by the state college trustees.

Californians might well give some thought to a thoroughgoing reorganization of the State's systems of higher education. Two broad areas in which reforms are needed include: (1) the external administrative organization, and (2) the internal management of the colleges and universities.

One plan proposed by this writer would be to:

1. Assign to the junior colleges all the lower division (freshman and sophomore) students who wish to attend a public, tax-supported college.
2. Limit the state colleges to an upper division (junior and senior) student emphasis leading to a Baccalaureate degree and a graduate program leading to the Master's degree. The emphasis would be on teaching. Research in the state colleges would be de-emphasized.

3. Reserve for the existing state university system offerings in the upper-division leading to the Baccalaureate degree, and emphasis leading to Master's and Doctor's degrees. The research emphasis would be reserved to the University of California.

With the implementation of this external administrative organization, many improvements would accrue to higher education, at a reduced cost to taxpayers.

WITH REGARD to the second broad area, the internal management of public colleges and universities, it is quite obvious that reforms are urgently needed. The changing relationships in the roles of trustees and regents, college administrators, teaching faculty and students have not been achieved by orderly evolution, but, indeed, by revolution. In the rapid transition the teaching faculties who are subject-matter specialists have gained control of the on-campus administrative apparatus in virtually every tax-supported college and university in California.

Professionally trained administrators, who formerly provided leadership in high education, but who refused to submit to faculty domination no longer serve as leaders. Those administrators who were willing to submit to faculty control, however, have been relegated to assignments as coordinators of various functions in college management. Ironically, the salaries for such positions have continued to rise, while leadership responsibilities have been eroded by faculty committees.

Instead of the orderly system of administration previously observed in colleges and universities where faculty members were responsible to a department head, the department head to a Dean and the Dean in turn responsible to a college president, we now have a faculty committee system in which tenured faculty members, in effect, control the appointment of department heads, deans and college presidents.

Protected by tenure, the teaching faculty has demanded and achieved control of faculty appointments, faculty promotions and faculty dismissals. Administrators, who formerly exerted leadership in all these areas, properly were not protected by tenure in administrative positions. When they failed to perform adequately and effectively they were removed from office.

WITH THE teaching faculty in control of the public colleges and universities, however, in a system of management with the lines of authority nearly non-existent, it is virtually impossible to fix responsibility. Instead of being able to identify the source of good or bad decisions with an individual charged with responsibility, we now have a consensus of anonymous committees. Consequently, when some faculty activities lead to immoral results, we can find no responsible individual to blame.

In a plan, therefore, where professionally trained administrators are relegated to faculty clerical-coordinating functions and/or to classroom teaching, while classroom teachers, who are subject matter specialists, administer the colleges and universities, we truly have an example of the blind leading those who can see.

College and university trustees and regents have generally followed a course of least resistance in recent years, by yielding to the demands of clamoring, power-starved, college and university faculties. Consequently, trustees and regents have compromised their public trust, of representing the people at large, by permitting encroachment on their powers by college faculties. In too many instances trustees and regents no longer resist faculty commands to jump. The only question raised is:

How high?

Until the naming of regents for 16-year terms and state college trustees for 8-year terms is removed from the realm of politics, where it is now placed through gubernatorial appointment, we cannot and should not expect meaningful representation. Once in our history we had a political philosophy that to the victor belong the spoils. This system was modified by civil service legislation. But so far as higher education is concerned we still are guided by a primitive political philosophy which may be expressed aptly by the slogan, to the victor belong the spoils.

THOUGH MORE than half of each tax dollar collected by the State is spent in support of public education, the people who provide the tax revenue for higher education do not have a direct voice through elected representatives to exercise control over the state college and university systems. The time may be near, therefore, for the people of California to demand of the Legislature that the choice of membership on the boards of trustees and regents be made by the California electorate, so that once every four years each incumbent's record can be appraised by the taxpayers.

Faculty control of the colleges and universities, partially achieved by students performing faculty-conceived shenanigans, is now being threatened by the students. College youth, employing the pressure tactics they have been taught by some of their professors, are demanding with success, representation in nearly all aspects of college management. Higher education's silent benefactor, the taxpayer, meanwhile, digs deeper and deeper into his pocketbook to finance the enclaves of anarchy, which many of our college and university campuses have become.

College and university professors during recent years have spared no effort to create a new image for members of their profession. And they have had phenomenal success in changing the image! But instead of achieving the distinction of being admired as sophisticated intellectuals, as they had hoped, many of today's college and university professors are looked upon as migratory misfits, or irresponsible itinerants. This is unfortunate, indeed, for possibly as many as 80 per cent of the men and women who staff public higher education facilities are sincere and dedicated individuals whose foremost concern is the teaching function. The remaining 20 per cent of the faculty, though hired to teach, run the colleges and universities.

A major threat to our colleges and universities in the mounting crisis is the effort by organized labor to establish affiliated unions for college and university faculties. Industrial collective bargaining as a means of settling disputes between professors and the college trustees is not only inappropriate, but damaging to the institutions of higher learning.

THE RELATIONSHIPS between governing boards of trustees or regents and their teaching employees is not analogous to labor-management relations in private enterprise. Inasmuch as public schools are not profit-making institutions, wage adjustments cannot be achieved on a profit-sharing basis, as they are frequently in business and industry. The threat of strikes with the concurrent worn and wearisome bitterness of labor-management strife and warfare and the curtailment of school services create a menace to be deplored throughout the land.

There is much evidence that unless immediate and drastic measures are undertaken for improvement of public higher education, students admitted to the colleges and universities, eventually will be awarded worthless degrees. Some students who attend public-supported colleges and universities, will in effect receive a college degree, but not a college education.

Campbell Garden Club asks city for bird sanctuary

When the members of Campbell Garden Club meet in the Fireside Room at the Congregational Church on Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 1 p.m., they will have several civic projects to discuss. One very important item will be the hoped-for Bird Sanctuary.

Through the club's Conservation chairman, Mrs. Gladys Roberts, they have appealed to the Campbell City Council to declare the community a sanctuary for wild birds. This would mean that molesting wild birds or their nests would be prohibited within the borders of Campbell.

Mrs. Roberts, an active member of California Garden Clubs, Inc. for 34 of the 35 years the organization has existed, points out that due to the changing economy of the area, Campbell is no longer an orchard community.

"Where orchardists once drove off wild birds by any means possible in order to salvage their crops, we now have a community of residences without the happy sounds and helpful habits of song birds," she said recently at a meeting of the Santa Clara Valley District of California Garden Clubs.

Along with Mrs. John Jackson, president of Campbell Garden Club, Mrs. Roberts made the appeal to the City Council last month. The matter will be on the Nov. 13 agenda and no doubt the garden club members will attend.

Plans for beautifying the percolation pond banks along the west side of Highway 17 will also be discussed.

With many of the members busily engaged in preparing glass art, wreaths of pods and cones and other holiday decorating ideas for display in the Sixth annual Christmas Lane in the San Jose Civic Auditorium, there are others working out details for the First Yule Parlor Parade. Christmas Lane will be held Nov. 11, 12 and 13, and the Parlor Parade is set for Monday, Dec. 18 from 1 to 4 p.m.

Hospitality chairman, Mrs. James B. Fields, will be assisted by Mmes. Joseph Aversente, Henry Blohm, Ernest Bryan, Richard Conway, A. F. Cracolice, Robert Falconi, Alfred Johnson, Edgar Johnson and Miss Violette Costable. Homemade pies will be featured at the buffet and any pies left over will be sold.

A horticulture exchange is planned for the Nov. 8 meeting in addition to an illustrated program of gardens, flowers and people compiled by club members. Guests are welcome.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY-- Mr. and Mrs. George Slough, 1323 Parsons Ave., Campbell, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary at a surprise party given at the home of friends recently. Their three children, George Slough Jr., U.S. Army, Susan and Bill, and 25 guests gathered to wish them well.

CHARTER MEMBERS-- Mrs. Tom Perry of Campbell congratulates two new members of Phi Delta Phi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, at ceremonies held at Salinas Valley Savings and Loan Bank reception room recently. The new members of the newly chartered chapter are (left) Linda Hediger and Agnes Nilson. Mrs. Perry is president of the local council which consists of 32 chapters.

County property owners get annual tax bills --- ouch!

Mailing of approximately 250,000 Santa Clara County property tax bills were accomplished Oct. 30 and 31, according to Director of Finance Edward N. Glaeser. Collections began on Nov. 1.

The Tax Collector's office, under Deputy Director Leonard E. Engeman, are responsible for collection of $209.3 million in real estate taxes and special property assessments, an increase of $20.5 million over last year.

Tax bills will again include an insert illustrating the County share of the property tax dollar, since city, special district, and education taxes are also included in the tax bill.

The insert leaflet also lists services provided by the county, and, for the first time, advises taxpayers over 65 of a new Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance Law which allows property tax relief to those with incomes of less than $3,350 per year.

County government's share of the bill will amount to $43,322,799. Schools, which have stimulated much of the overall increase, will receive $123,979,343. City portion, excluding Palo Alto, which collects its own taxes, is $30,203,997 and special districts will take a $11,844,286 share.

A memorandum copy of the tax statement was sent to over 100,000 citizens whose property assessments are paid by mortgage companies as a means of avoiding the annual confusion when monthly payments are raised.

An additional insert was included with the tax bill giving complete instructions for making payment, since a new procedure is in effect this year making it no longer necessary to include the entire tax bill when mailing a payment. The taxpayer will retain the tax bill and send only the stub or stubs along with the payment.

Glaeser recommends that assessments be paid by mail, noting, however, that his office is equipped to handle payments in person.

The Tax Collector's Office is located on the first floor of the County Administration Building, 70 West Hedding, San Jose.

plans for the building be submitted. It was pointed out that a precedent had already been set for a similar operation.

The commission also approved plans for a flower stand in the new Lucky Stores shopping center on W. Hamilton as submitted for the "Thoful Shop" by Ad-Art, Inc. after considerable discussion.

The flower stand would be located near the street in the parking lot and the commission specified that the stand must be placed on a wooden deck on which flowers will be displayed. The action now goes to the City Council because of the overall planned development zoning.

The commission in another action approved plans for an industrial building on McGlincey Lane as submitted by Kato Bros. & Associates and granted a side-yard setback for the firm because of power line easement on the property.

Approved also were plans for a four-unit apartment at 670 Nello Drive submitted by Infantino and Toschi and for an addition to the Kirkwood Hardware as submitted by Ira Kirkorian.

The commission also upheld the planning director's denial of a second pole sign for Phillips Service Station at 1595 Winchester Blvd.

Approved also were plans for a 70-bed convalescent hospital on Union Ave. submitted by Philip Sondenno and for an addition to the Free Will Baptist Church at 157 E. Rincon.

The application for Bob Raffanti for a canopy at the rear of the building at 260 E. Campbell was continued because the applicant was not present.

The commission also approved the "vacation" of a 3 1/2 ft. strip on Fourth St. to Sanford because the strip would not be needed in the plans for the street improvement.

Letters to the Editor

IN APPRECIATION

To the Editor:

The Kiwanis Club of Campbell wishes to express its appreciation for providing publicity of our recent pancake breakfast. Since the proceeds are used for various youth activities within our community, we are grateful for all the support we receive.

College trustees hear of growth

West Valley College Board of Trustees last week heard staff members elaborate on the school's steady growth--from construction in Saratoga to book shelves in Campbell.

R. E. Arnold, dean of campus facilities, told the board that construction on the Engineering-Technology building on the Saratoga campus is slightly ahead of schedule.

To date, he said, $542,000 worth of construction had risen from the construction site--about 27 per cent of the total cost. The building should be completed by next Aug. 6. Work began on June 23.

While bulldozers prepared the land for cement finishers and carpenters in Saratoga, the library staff back at the Campbell campus were quietly enlarging and reorganizing that facility.

Hugh Hall, librarian, told trustees the staff virtually has completed the cataloging change from the Dewey decimal system to the Library of Congress system. The job took 10 weeks to complete and involved about 12,000 books.

When West Valley opened in September, 1964, the library contained about 3,000 volumes, Hall said. The total has grown to about 16,500 at present and should reach 20,000 by the end of the current school year.

Sincerely,
Roy Viglicca

IN APPRECIATION

Dear George:

The recent successful bond issue for capital improvements was a hallmark in the City's history. Many people should receive credit for the success of this campaign.

We on the Council, however, are acutely aware of the important role you and your newspaper played in the success of this bond issue. On behalf of the City Council and the city employees, may I take this opportunity to sincerely express our appreciation for the assistance you have givenus this part year.

Sincerely,
Edward J. Rogers

has become a regular trash heap. In a very prominent place, just one block from Campbell Ave., and leading into a busy shopping center, housing drug store, variety stores, offices, and a big Lee Bros Super-Market, it is a disgrace to the City of Campbell which is now embarking on an improvement program. Passers-by on their way to these stores and shops and to the Campbell Methodist Church, either in cars or walking, must be shocked by this sight.

Cannot something be done, either by the owners, or by the cleanup squad of the City, to keep this lot in order?

The City Improvement Committee has had this called to their attention, but so far, to no avail.

"Buzz sessions" will fill the agenda for tonight (Nov. 8) Parent-Teacher Association meeting, starting at 8:00 in the cafeteria.

This session is an experimental program to be held for the first time at Camden High. Following the regular business procedures, parents will form various groups to discuss topics of interest.

Experienced speakers will talk on subjects such as: Vocational Schools, School Literature Today, College Entrance Problems, Physical Fitness in Boys' P.E. and Community Relationships.

The purposes of these "buzz sessions" is to encourage parent participation in discussions, and to gain their ideas and opinions.

This year 550 parents which is one third of the total student body, joined the P.T.A.

TEACHERS HOPEFUL
Camden is presently participating in a student observer program involving teacher hopefuls from San Jose State. Seven student teachers have been assigned to our school for the fall semester, according to Miss Kathleen Bull, Director of Education.

Miss Pamela Falt, Miss Judith Kittoe, Miss Lynne Kozen, Miss Barbara Mahaffey, Mr. Donald Kint, Mr. Timothy Knowles, and Mr. Gene Longinetti, are doing understudy work with various teachers and are observing their daily classes.

CAMDEN SPORTS
Camden's cross-country teams traveled to the Vasona All-Corners meet Nov. 2, where they competed against several schools in the C.C.S. division on the 2.2 mile course.

Al Martin and Scott Blake finished in the top ten for the varsity division. Al finished sixth with a time of 11:12, followed by Scott coming in tenth with 11:28.

Tim Tolbert finished ninth in the sophomore division with a time of 12:08, while Dave Hernandez 12:14 and Kinne Strong 12:55, finished second and twelfth respectively in the frosh division.

The West Valley Athletic League cross-country finals will be held tomorrow (Nov. 9) at Vasona. Camden's varsity team can tie with Westmont for the co-championship by defeating them at the final. The sophomore team can also tie for co-championship by defeating Los Gatos at the meet.

With half of the game played, the Saratoga Falcons fought back and defeated the Cougars 20 to 6, on the Los Gatos field.

Camden seemed to have an upset in its grasp when quarterback Rusty Thompson scored a one yard plunge with 3½ minutes elapsed in the first quarter.

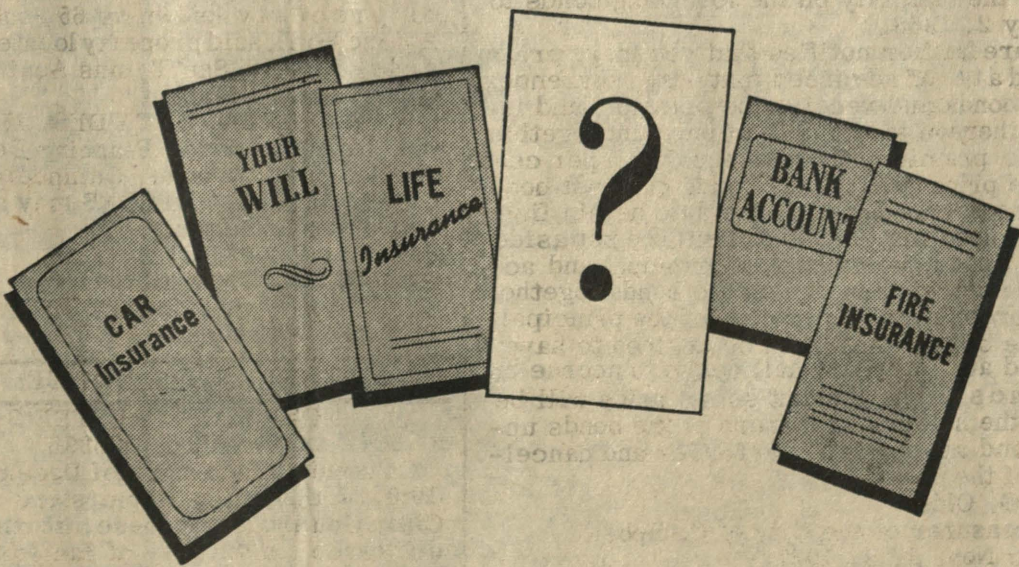

The Cougars held out this lead until midway through the third period when Falcon halfback Steve Burger galloped 40 yards for the score. Quarterback Bill Peterson tallied the extra point. The score then reading Saratoga 7, Camden 6.

Camden could not find the end zone again as several drives were stopped in deep Saratoga territory.

The Falcons scored twice more in the fourth period, and seemed to be tough for the Cougars of Camden.

The next game-time is set for Nov. 10 at 6:00 with Los Gatos on their field.

WV Post 158 will initiate members

Thirteenth District Officers of the American Legion, 2nd Area, Department of California, will preside over the initiation of new members into West Valley Post 158, 1344 Dell Ave., Campbell, at 8 p.m. Friday evening, Nov. 10.

According to West Valley Post 158 Commander David Buchholz, the new American Legionnaires are veterans of the current Viet Nam War, the Korean War and World War II periods.

Following the reading of names of recent applicants, 13th District Commander Larry Flores and his Initiation Team will preside over the balance of the meeting.

All Legionnaires of West Valley are urged to be present and Legionnaires from surrounding Posts are invited to attend. The initiation is expected to rival the ceremony of a year ago, when about 30 WW II and Korean Vets became members of the West Valley Post 158. Refreshments will be served after the Initiation.

QUITO PTA
The negative influences of movies, newspapers, TV and magazines on school-age children will be up for discussion next Tuesday, Nov. 14 at Quito School. The program is part of the current project under way by the Quito PTA titled "Let's Make Decency Popular".

A panel discussion giving expression to four divergent points of view will make up the program. Panelists will be: Mrs. B. McLaughlin of the PTA Motion Picture and TV Council, Dr. Jack Nidever, eminent child psychologist, the Reverend William H. Gould, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Campbell, and District Attorney Louis P. Bergna.

An opportunity for audience participation will be provided by a question-and-answer period immediately following the speakers. Starting time for the meeting will be 7:30 p.m.

Church names new pastor

John Denchfield of Digby, Nova Scotia has been appointed pastor of the Church of God of the Faith of Abraham, 555 McGlincey Lane, Campbell.

Pastor Denchfield and his wife, Cleora, have three grown children, who live in the mid-west. He studied for the ministry at Oregon Bible College at Oregon, Illinois. He has held pastorates in Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan and Kansas for several years specialized in church fund raising direction. The new pastor has been with the Lighthouse Mission of the Church of God in Digby, Nova Scotia since 1958.

Pastor Denchfield replaces Rev. Russell McGraw who has taken a pastorate in the Faith Chapel at Lafayette, Indiana.

Jail escapee starts ruckus

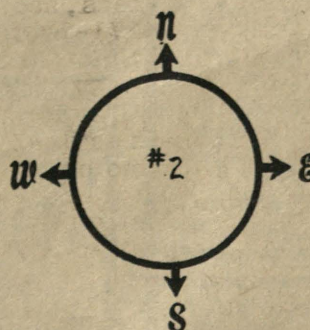

Campbell Police officers arrested and booked an alleged escapee from the Santa Clara County Jail Saturday night after a scuffle. The suspect, Jack Wayne Jordan, 24, 40 W. Campbell Ave., was apprehended in his car near 1860 Winchester Blvd. He was also charged with resisting arrest.

The suspect became belligerent and assaulted Officer Paul Schommer who was attempting to handcuff him. As a result Officer Schommer will be off duty for several days with bruised ribs. Jordan also broke loose from his seat belt and from the belt restraining his feet in the police car and attempted to kick out the rear window of the vehicle. He was transported to County Jail and booked.

ART DEMONSTRATION

The Campbell Artist's Guild will present Mr. Edward W. Engelman in a demonstration-workshop in painting with acrylics at their next meeting, Nov. 9, at 7:30 p.m. This is an opportunity for all those interested to bring their own painting materials and paint. The public is cordially invited to attend and participate.
